

5. The Burning Phoenix

The phoenix, was a bird in Greek mythology. It was as large or largest than an eagle, and had red and gold feathers. Only one phoenix existed at any time and it was always male. The greek writers said he lived to be four hundred years old. When the life cycle of the phoenix came to a close, he would gather wood and other burnable items and light herself on fire. Out of the ashes, a new phoenix would arise. The new phoenix would then carry the ashes of his father to the sun god. Because of the long life span of the phoenix and his rebirth from the ashes, he symbolized immortality and rebirth. Him was also said to symbolize the raising and setting of the sun.

The Phoenix

The phoenix existed in Greek mythology and was said to live for five hundred years. At the end of the phoenix's life cycle, he would build a fire and burn himself. A new phoenix would arise from the ashes.

Find the 9 errors in this activity. There are no errors in the illustration or the caption.
